How a vision in 1973 transformed housing for our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community

In 1973, a group of local Aboriginal people united with a shared mission: to offer housing for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families in Townsville.

Their vision grew into Yumba-Meta Limited, now at the forefront of addressing housing and homelessness challenges, particularly for First Nations People in Townsville.

Through secure, affordable, and culturally appropriate accommodation and support, Yumba-Meta Limited effectively breaks the cycles of poverty, substance abuse, and domestic and family violence for numerous individuals and families.

Over the last 50 years, Yumba-Meta Limited has greatly impacted the lives of vulnerable individuals and families, especially Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

We are committed to remaining a powerful advocate for our community, offering services tailored to diverse personal and cultural requirements, and creating positive change.

CEO's Report

Dushy Thangiah
Chief Executive Officer

It is with great pride that I present my 2024 report to members and stakeholders. The past year has been a mix of significant achievements and extraordinary challenges for Yumba-Meta Limited (YML).

The development project at Rasmussen, with 28 dwellings approved for funding, stalled due to the civil contractor going into administration. This impacted Yumba-Meta in many aspects. The inability to deliver the homes as planned by June 2024 was the major challenge, considering the acute shortage of social housing in Townsville. However, the board, the project manager, the Major Projects sub-committee, and senior management worked collaboratively to overcome the obstacles and achieve a favourable outcome for Yumba-Meta. The project is now on track, with civil works expected to be completed by November 2024 and construction to commence in early 2025.

YML staff have worked hard and remained resilient while the community is suffering due to a housing crisis exacerbated by the cost-of-living crisis. I always feel privileged and humbled to lead such a dedicated team of staff. Not only in the last year but also in the past few years, our sector has faced many challenges, and our staff have displayed unwavering resilience by effectively adapting to the evolving environment and the changing needs of our community.

Since 2021, YML has successfully completed the construction of 42 units of accommodation, with another 62 new tenancies projected over the next couple of years. As a leading housing provider, we are committed to increasing social and affordable housing through a planned strategy over the next three to five years.

YML continues to manage five housing programs and eight support programs. Unfortunately, the YML Board and management had to make the difficult decision to discontinue the Residential Care Program for Young People due to significant challenges and risks faced by the organisation.

The Townsville Family Violence Support Service continues to support high numbers of First Nations victim survivors and individuals using violence, with the aim to reduce the impact of violence in our community. The YML-managed Men's Behaviour Change Program has been approved by the Magistrate's Court as a condition of bail, after four long years of efforts to get the program approved.

Karingal accommodates and supports primarily Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people travelling from remote and rural communities for treatment at the Townsville University Hospital. YML successfully secured operational funding in July 2023 and commenced operations on 6th November 2023. The program aims to improve health outcomes for vulnerable First Nations people from rural and remote communities and prevent people from falling into the cycle of homelessness. Karingal received 84 referrals to the facility from November 2023 to June 2024, with 80% returning home, 14% exiting into other safe accommodations, and 6% continuing their stay at Karingal into the new year.

YML secured Commonwealth Government funding through the Safe Places Emergency Accommodation program. This project will deliver 10 units of accommodation and an administration office on YML-owned land. The project will remove many of the barriers that women escaping violence currently face in accessing appropriate safe places.

Housingwise Realty, YML's not-for-profit real estate service, has gained momentum with 17 properties currently under management. Through this project, YML hopes to increase housing options for people who face discrimination in the private housing market.

I take this opportunity to thank the Board for their stewardship and commitment to Yumba-Meta, as well as the independent chairs of Yumba-Meta's sub-committees for their professionalism and guidance that enhance our decision-making process.

I express my sincere appreciation and gratitude, especially to the YML Senior Management team and front-line staff, the true heroes of Yumba-Meta. I applaud them for their dedication and commitment. Yumba-Meta staff are truly amazing and work tirelessly towards Yumba-Meta's vision of "Achieving sustainable communities."

Finally, I acknowledge the contribution of all our consultants, contractors, and service providers for their ongoing professionalism, support, and commitment to Yumba-Meta. Together, we will continue to advocate for increased housing and improved access to appropriate health and other essential services that are relevant to the changing needs of our community. We will ensure services are place-based, person-centred, culturally appropriate, and most importantly sustainable.

Our unwavering commitment to social justice will never cease.

Home Is Where the Heart Is: Discover Yumba-Meta Limited’s Housing Services

Every day, we house over 440 people – creating safe spaces for those who need it most Yumba-Meta Limited (YML) provides housing to over 440 people daily, supporting some of the most vulnerable members of the community who face barriers to accessing private housing. Managing 150 tenancies under the Long-term Community Housing Program and 53 under the Transitional Housing Program, YML offers more than just a place to live.

We aim to empower tenants by helping them sustain long-term housing. Our properties cater to individuals and families in need of secure, appropriate, and affordable housing, especially when other options fall short.

YML’s comprehensive intake process ensures we understand clients’ immediate and long-term needs, allowing us to offer tailored support.

As a leader in North Queensland’s housing sector, we advocate for stronger, more sustainable policies, particularly for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. YML provides affordable housing to individuals and families on low to moderate incomes, focusing on those who struggle to find accommodation in the private rental market.

Our housing management approach includes:

- Delivering high-quality housing services
- Offering properties in well-located, mixed-tenure developments
- Reducing tenant occupancy costs through good environmental design and proximity to services
- Ensuring tenancy sustainability through effective management
- Providing an accessible and transparent service
- Encouraging tenant involvement in their housing and the organisation

Family Stories: Jayda Songoro

Long-term Housing Client

Originally from Horne Island, busy mum Jayda Songoro is now happily living in Townsville where she’s studying a nursing degree. She first sought help from Yumba-Meta because of a domestic violence situation and, with three little ones to worry about at the time, was grateful to have refuge at a women’s shelter.

“Staying at Flora House, I knew I was guaranteed a three-month stay to recover and find housing. At first, I was down in the dumps about feeling dependent when I never had been. But then I realised I didn’t have to be dependent – Yumba-Meta was there to support but I could still help myself.”

Jayda then set about inspecting and applying for rentals and was offered two units. But, better still, was news from Yumba-Meta that a long-term house with the organisation had become available.

“It’s been the best move ever. We’ve got basketball courts and paths that wind along the river nearby and the bus stop for school is just there. At first I couldn’t believe it was mine. It took a while to sink in.”

Yumba-Meta has also helped Jayda by connecting her with a counsellor. “Yarning with the counsellor gave me the chance to look at things that happened when I was young with my mum from a different perspective. It made me realise I needed to accept what happened instead of relating me and my mum to me and my daughter.

I’ve also been doing relationship counselling and am trying to work things out with my partner. We just needed to break the cycle and relocate for a better lifestyle.”

Jayda now has her sights set on home ownership.

“I have my fingers crossed to stay with Yumba-Meta because I know Yumba has that offer of buying a house from them. Yumba has helped a lot of people from the start to the end – they’re always there.”

A New Beginning: Dale Parker Place’s Role in Ending Homelessness

From rough sleeping to stability – discover how DPP is changing lives in Townsville

Dale Parker Place (DPP) provides essential accommodation and support for single males, females, and couples without children who are experiencing homelessness, including those sleeping rough or facing chronic homelessness.

Our goal is to help residents achieve independent, sustainable housing and engage with the community. Currently, DPP maintains an occupancy rate exceeding 98%, with many clients successfully transitioning into private or community housing. Our dedicated staff offer individualised case management around the clock, ensuring that each client receives the support they need for a smooth transition to appropriate accommodation.

In 2016, Department of Housing replaced the original 25-tenancy building with a modern complex featuring 40 one-bedroom units, which opened in August 2017. This expansion allowed us to provide long-term housing solutions for individuals who may not be able to sustain public or community housing.

DPP’s positive influence on Townsville’s homeless population is evident, as reflected in the reduced occupancy rates at the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre.

We receive referrals from various sources, including self-referral, the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre, Homelessness Health Outreach Team, Residential Rehabilitation Services, Case Coordination Group and other Homelessness Services.

At Dale Parker Place, we are committed to making a difference in the lives of those we serve by fostering a supportive and welcoming environment.

A Safe Harbour: The Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre

Providing 24/7 support for those in crisis – where sobering up meets compassionate care

The Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre is a sobering-up facility open 24 hours a day, 365 days of the year, designed to support people at risk of self-harm or to others due to public intoxication. The Centre provides a safe and familiar place to sober up, a clean bed, healthy meal, hygiene and laundry facilities and basic first aid if necessary. Assistance is provided to those who are too intoxicated to meet their basic needs unaided. The Centre is an alternative to the Townsville Police Watch House. Clients are transported to and from the Centre.

Staff Stories: Wayne Awong

Case Manager – The Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre

Wayne has been with Yumba-Meta Limited since 2021 but isn't new to working with his mob. Previously he was involved in tertiary recruitment and was also a project officer for the Indigenous Land Corporation.

Now working with male clients of the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre, he assists with running the Breaking the Cycle program. The aim – to help people struggling with homelessness and addictions sober up and get healthy and housed. Clients are transported to and from the centre by Yumba-Meta's private shuttle bus.

"We're just trying to help people get up and going again and show them the way. Often, they don't have any identification, so we organise photo ID as well as their health checks."

"Many of our clients have lost everything and are going from park bench to park bench or couch to couch. With us, they can have a shower, good meal and a safe place to sleep."

As part of the Breaking the Cycle program, clients have the support of a weekly men's group as well as other activities like arts and crafts and barbeques to re-set their focus. It's a three-month program but, as everyone is different, this might stretch out to six months if needed.

All regular clients of the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre are encouraged to participate in the Breaking the Cycle program. If successful, they transition to Dale Parker Place, community housing or private rental depending on the client's capacity to maintain a tenancy.

"At Dale Parker Place, clients have support as they learn how to live independently and start again."

"I want our people to know that we are able to achieve our dreams – sometimes we just need someone to help us join the dots."

“We’re just trying to help people get up and going again and show them
the way.”

Rewriting Futures: How Breaking The Cycle Is Changing Lives

A holistic approach to substance abuse and homelessness – helping clients find their way home

The Breaking the Cycle program, managed at the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre, is a targeted initiative designed to break the cycle of substance abuse and homelessness for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander clients.

By allowing participants to remain at the centre for an extended period, the program provides the incentive and support needed to engage with the comprehensive services offered.

All regular clients of the Reverend Charles Harris Diversionary Centre are encouraged to join Breaking the Cycle.

The program aims to help participants transition to more stable accommodation, such as Dale Parker Place, community housing, or private rental, based on their individual capacity to maintain a tenancy.

Through this holistic approach, Breaking the Cycle empowers participants to address the underlying issues contributing to their substance abuse and homelessness.

By fostering a supportive environment and connecting clients with tailored services, the program facilitates long-term, sustainable change in the lives of those it serves.

FACTS & FIGURES:
Since 2011, 2920 clients have participated in the Breaking the Cycle Program.

Welcome Home: Yumba-Meta’s Employment And Education Housing Program

Creating safe spaces for new opportunities and pathways to success for Indigenous residents

Yumba-Meta’s Employment and Education Housing Program (EEHP) provides 13 specialised tenancies for Indigenous individuals relocating to Townsville from remote communities. This initiative supports those seeking employment, education, or training opportunities, playing a crucial role in fostering self-sufficiency and community integration.

The program offers transitional accommodation that is not only safe but also designed to meet the unique needs of its residents. By providing a stable living environment, we empower individuals to focus on their personal and professional development without the added stress of housing insecurity.

Residents benefit from tailored support services, including access to job training, educational resources, and career counselling. This holistic approach encourages participants to build skills necessary for long-term success in the workforce. Moreover, the program promotes cultural connections, helping individuals maintain ties to their heritage while navigating urban life.

The EEHP is more than just housing; it is a pathway to independence and empowerment. By facilitating access to essential resources, we aim to break the cycle of disadvantage faced by many Indigenous individuals.

Through this program, Yumba-Meta is committed to creating opportunities that lead to sustainable employment and educational attainment, ultimately contributing to stronger communities. Our focus on transitional support ensures that each participant can thrive as they embark on their journey toward a brighter future.

Seniors Housing

Welcome To Our Elders' Oasis: A Home Where Legacy Meets Community

Yumba-Meta Limited proudly opened the Ernest & Maud Hoolihan Elders Village in 2012, fulfilling our commitment to provide retirement village-style housing for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander residents aged 55 and over.

The village features 16 two-bedroom units nestled among trees, offering a serene environment where residents can enjoy modern, low-maintenance homes. Since its inception, the village has consistently maintained high occupancy levels.

In 2018, we initiated a solar project to alleviate the burden of high electricity costs for our tenants. The first eight units received solar panels in late 2019, funded by Yumba-Meta, while the remaining eight units were equipped with solar panels through the Queensland Government's Solar for Rentals Rebate, completed in 2020.

Named in honour of Dr. Ernest Hoolihan OAM and his late wife Maud – founders of Yumba-Meta – the village embodies their long-held vision for an elders' community. Located on six acres in Deeragun, this project took 11 years to realise and was officially opened by the Hon. Minister for Housing and Public Works, Tim Mander.

The Ernest & Maud Hoolihan Elders Village exemplifies community-driven solutions that cater to the physical, social, and emotional well-being of its residents, enriching their lives in a supportive environment.

The Ernest & Maud Hoolihan Elders Village is a tranquil retreat designed to enhance the lives of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander seniors.

Long-term Resident
Ernst & Maud Hoolihan Elders Village

For the past 13 years, Chaille Dodd has called the Ernst & Maud Hoolihan Elders Village in Deeragun home. One of the original residents, Chaille hails from Mackay but before moving to Townsville was living in a Housing Commission flat in Charters Towers.

"I needed an artificial leg, so I was back and forth to Townsville regularly to see a doctor. I put in an application to Yumba-Meta because the travelling was proving tough.

"I'm very appreciative I was chosen to live in one of the units and I'm fully confident I'm able to contact them with any concerns.

"The employees of Yumba-Meta have shown me respect and consideration at all times. They maintain their units and yard on a regular basis and any personal issues are handled with the utmost discretion."

With two bedrooms and two toilets, Chaille's unit has plenty of space and she likes the peace and quiet and safety of the area.

"I like the security of living here – you're away from harm."

As a support worker for the National Disability Insurance Scheme, Chaille appreciates coming home to the sanctuary of the Elders Village to unwind.

Our Women's Shelters: Providing A Safe Place To Start Over

Offering safety, healing, and empowerment, Yumba-Meta's Flora House and Elsie House are more than just shelters – they're stepping stones to brighter futures.

Yumba-Meta operates two vital Women's Shelters, Flora House and Elsie House, providing essential support for women and their children escaping domestic and family violence. These shelters offer a safe, welcoming, and non-judgmental environment, with Flora House featuring ten bedrooms and Elsie House accommodating six.

The benefits of these shelters extend far beyond providing immediate refuge. They serve as crucial lifelines for women seeking to break free from abusive situations, allowing them to regain control over their lives.

By offering round-the-clock support, we ensure that residents have access to essential services such as crisis counselling, safety planning, and legal advocacy. This holistic approach empowers women to heal from trauma and develop the skills necessary for independent living.

Taileah Watson

Program Manager – Flora House and Elsie House

Open 24/7 every day of the year, Yumba-Meta’s Flora and Elsie Houses are safe havens for women fleeing domestic and family violence.

“We’re labelled as crisis accommodation, but we pride ourselves on offering whole-person care to our clients, which looks different for everyone. Some women might lean into the mental health and counselling support because that’s what they need. Others might need financial, educational, employment or GP support.”

Taileah started with Yumba-Meta as a case manager at Dale Parker Place before moving on to Flora House and Elsie House, where she is now the manager of both women’s shelters. Part of her role as a program manager is working closely with organisations, such as the Townsville Family Violence Support Service, to ensure a continuity of support. Having worked as a case manager previously, she’s also able to step into that role when needed.

“I think being a case manager has given me a good understanding of what clients need and what I can do to support my team.”

Elsie House is also federally funded for First Nations women and children, which assists in providing a space that’s culturally safe.

“What we love about Elsie House is it’s a bit more of a quiet space to have our First Nations women and children together. And I’d say 80 per cent of our staff, including myself, are First Nations.”

The length of stay for each client varies but Taileah has seen a growing need for families to stay longer because of the housing crisis.

“A client’s stay could be anywhere from a week to six months. While they’re here, we can help them with whatever they need to set them up for a brighter future. There’s no better feeling than when you’re taking a woman to pick up a bed for her family’s new home – it’s just the best thing ever.”

“I’m just really happy to be in a space where I can help women and children thrive.”

Karingal Patient Transition Accommodation

Joining Yumba-Meta Limited in 2020 as a case manager at Dale Parker Place in Rosslea, John transferred his skills to the new Karingal Patient Transition Accommodation facility in Riverway when it opened in 2023.

“We’re here for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples travelling from remote communities for specialist health management, such as referrals for dialysis, cancer treatment and pregnancy complications.

“We organise transport from the airport or bus terminal, and for those staying for a long period of time, we can help with changing their Job-Seeker payment to disability payments.”

Karingal offers 16 male beds, 8 female beds, 4 self-contained family units and 3 clinic rooms for visiting health specialists. It’s staffed 24/7 for 365 days of the year to ensure continuous care for occupants.

“But we’re not just an accommodation facility – we also transport clients to and from their health appointments or to do their grocery shopping.

“It’s very satisfying to be able to support people who are travelling from remote and rural communities to access vital services.

A heart for helping – that’s what you need to work at Yumba-Meta.

“Working at Dale Parker Place, I saw clients go through the programs and go on to find stable community housing to a point where they no longer need support to sustain their tenancy. Seeing clients go on to find employment and become self-sufficient is very satisfying.”

Healing Together: Supporting With Education, Safety, And Long-term Solutions To End Domestic And Family Violence

Townsville Family Violence Support Service helps both survivors and offenders create change, fostering safety and healing within families.

Townsville Family Violence Support Service is a domestic and family violence support service assisting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people experiencing and/or using violence. This service is trauma informed and delivered within a healing framework, prioritising victim safety and working to reduce violence and abusive behaviour.

Ultimately, the program's goal is to achieve best outcomes for families by keeping families safe. Best outcomes can mean many things – from working with persons using violence to proactively changing entrenched behaviours, to supporting clients to access and understand protection orders, court support, counselling, case management, information or referrals. The issue of family violence is often ingrained within families across many generations, and this is where the early intervention piece is critical to the long-term solution. This program is unique in that it deals with both persons using violence and victim survivors to attempt to break the cycle of family violence.

At the core of this service, is education. From YML's experience working with domestic and family violence victim survivors, there is a misconception that a protection order is 'only a piece of paper'. At the same time, persons using violence sometimes don't understand the conditions of their court order to avoid violating the order. The Townsville Family Violence Support Service works closely with victim survivors and persons using violence to understand court orders.

At the end of the 2019-20 financial year, the service commenced a 12-week Men's Behaviour Change Program led by an Indigenous Elder.

IMPRESSIVE RESULTS:
In 2023-2024, the Townsville Family Violence Support Service has counselled 145 females and 109 males, and case managed 470 females and 182 males. The Men's Behaviour Change Program received 72 new referrals in the same period.

Tamara Smith

Case Manager – Townsville Family Violence Support Service

Starting her Yumba-Meta Limited employment with Flora House as a support worker gave Tamara a grassroots understanding of the organisation's mission to serve vulnerable people. Now a case manager at the Townsville Family Violence Support Service, her desire to accomplish this mission remains strong and she's undertaking a Diploma of Counselling to add to her Certificate IV in Mental Health and Diploma of Community Services.

"Everybody's different. Everybody has their own story to tell. So our support and our approach is different for each person. Some clients might need support with writing Domestic Violence Orders for protection or going to court to provide evidence. Others may need counselling or, if they have children in a Child Safety care plan, we can go to those meetings and making sure they're on the right track."

For a recent client who needed to leave her husband without raising his suspicion, Tamara worked in the background to assist her in accessing the Escaping Violence Payment Program via Victim Assist Queensland. This helped the client purchase fuel vouchers to travel interstate and furniture to set up in her new location, as well as having the funds to pay off her bond loan.

Tamara also works closely with Yumba-Meta's high-risk team, established in 2023. For a recent client Tamara and the team worked together to have the client transferred to a property where safety upgrades were installed. And, as the client also acknowledged a drug addiction issue, they were able to connect her with counselling to work on overcoming her dependence.

Tamara's role is also educational as some clients who access the services don't realise the seriousness of their situation.

"A lot of women will say 'he just yells at me', so we do a lot of education around what violence is and how it often escalates. Many of the ladies who come to us don't understand how much domestic violence they're actually experiencing.

"I didn't even know I'd been in a domestic violence relationship myself in the past because he never physically hit me. So, we're trying to communicate that you don't only get hurt by being hit – there are lots of other ways you can be hurt, including sexual violence."

For Tamara the fulfillment that stems from seeing her clients' self-esteem grow is all the motivation she needs.

"When clients come in and they're standing up straighter and saying thank you because they're feeling so much stronger, that's so rewarding. Watching them come back to who they are and learn they're worth more than they were led to believe is huge."

“Everybody has their own story to tell. So our support and our approach is different for each person.”

A Bright Future Awaits: Discover the Weeburra Thulgarri Tutoring and Mentoring Program

Supporting Indigenous kids with learning, culture, and community – because We’re All One Big Family!

Yumba-Meta Limited is dedicated to enhancing the physical, social, and emotional well-being of Indigenous children while strengthening their cultural connections and resilience. In 2018, we acquired 25 Acheron Avenue, Cranbrook, with the vision of establishing a community centre to facilitate an early intervention tutoring and mentoring support program for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children.

Launched in July 2021, the Weeburra Thulgarri program – meaning “One Big Family” – targets children aged 7-8 years (Year 2) to improve school attendance, classroom engagement, literacy, numeracy skills, and overall confidence. By fostering self-esteem and a sense of belonging, we aim to increase the likelihood of these children completing high school and pursuing further education.

Partnering with three local primary schools – Rasmussen State School, Kelso State School, and Aitkenvale State School – Yumba-Meta conducts two sessions per day, four days a week. Students travel to the community centre via the Yumba-Meta bus, supervised by a teacher's aide and staff. They are provided with healthy lunches before starting their activities.

The program is deeply rooted in cultural and spiritual values, ensuring that young children receive support that resonates with their identity. By focusing on holistic development, Yumba-Meta is committed to nurturing the next generation of Indigenous leaders. Through initiatives like Weeburra Thulgarri, we strive to create a brighter future for Indigenous children in our community.

Building Resilience: Weeburra Thulgarri Residential Care Program for Young People

Yumba-Meta's Weeburra Thulgarri Residential Care Services for Young People plays a crucial role in providing essential out-of-home care and support for young individuals in need. This program is dedicated to creating safe and nurturing residential environments, staffed by trained professionals who implement evidence-based interventions aimed at empowering young people to build a positive future.

Throughout the 2023-2024 period, Weeburra Thulgarri supported 67 young people, offering them a stable foundation during challenging times. Unfortunately, the YML Board and management faced the difficult decision to discontinue the Residential Care Program due to significant challenges and risks encountered by the organisation. This decision underscores the pressing need for such programs, as they are vital in addressing the unique challenges faced by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander youth.

The Weeburra Thulgarri program not only provides immediate care but also fosters resilience and personal growth among its residents. By focusing on holistic development, it equips young individuals with the skills and confidence needed to navigate their futures successfully. The importance of this program cannot be overstated; it serves as a lifeline for vulnerable youth, ensuring they have access to the support they need to thrive.

As Yumba-Meta reflects on the impact of Weeburra Thulgarri, it remains committed to exploring new avenues for supporting young people in the community. The lessons learned from this program will inform future initiatives aimed at empowering Indigenous youth and fostering their well-being.

Hillside Gardens: A Game-Changer In Indigenous Home Ownership

Overcoming barriers, one lot at a time
– Yumba-Meta’s innovative approach to housing equity

Hillside Gardens Residential Estate stands out as a remarkable achievement in Yumba-Meta Limited’s property development portfolio. Nestled on 50 acres at the foothills of Mt Louisa, this estate was specifically designed to create pathways to home ownership for Indigenous individuals and families.

Out of 41 land lots, 34 were successfully sold to private buyers, with the remaining lots retained by Yumba-Meta. The final lots were sold during the 2020-21 financial year, culminating in total land sales of $2.2 million. This financial success has enabled Yumba-Meta to reinvest in the community, fostering sustainable housing solutions.

Dr. Ernest Hoolihan OAM, Chairman and Founder of Yumba-Meta, describes Hillside Gardens as a “game-changer” for the local Indigenous community. He highlights the multiple barriers Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples face in achieving home ownership, including inter-generational poverty and insecure employment.

The staged development approach allowed Yumba-Meta to progressively fund the subdivision. As blocks were sold, the proceeds financed the construction of rental housing and supported three young Indigenous families on their journey toward home ownership.

Hillside Gardens not only offers well-designed homes but also cultivates a village-like atmosphere in an enviable location close to essential amenities. By facilitating access to home ownership, Yumba-Meta is making a lasting impact on the lives of Indigenous families, promoting stability and fostering community resilience for generations to come.

Building Homes, Empowering Lives: Yumba-Meta’s SDA Initiative

Creating accessible spaces for individuals with disabilities – a commitment to comfort and independence

Yumba-Meta Limited is committed to providing quality homes for individuals living with disabilities.

In November 2019, we proudly delivered Townsville’s first newly built and NDIA-accredited Specialist Disability Accommodation (SDA) after two years of development.

Located at Hillside Gardens, these homes are designed to accommodate eight SDA residents. Each property features wide doorways, spacious hallways, and adjustable-height kitchen benchtops with wheelchair accessibility, ensuring they meet the diverse needs of residents.

Despite the successful construction of these properties, connecting suitable tenants to available SDA accommodations remains a challenge due to the requirement for NDIS referrals.

Yumba-Meta actively advocates for individuals needing access to appropriate housing by educating NDIS support coordinators and relevant agencies.

Recognising the ongoing community need for purpose-built tenancies, we are dedicated to expanding our SDA offerings.

Our focus on creating inclusive environments enhances the quality of life for residents while promoting independence and dignity.

Through our efforts in providing Specialist Disability Accommodation, Yumba-Meta aims to empower individuals with disabilities and ensure they have access to safe, supportive housing options.

By continuing to advocate and educate within the community, we strive to bridge the gap between available housing and those in need, fostering a more inclusive society for all.
